Volume 1 Issue 5

May 2006

April Performance

Gold, Energy Service, and Natural Resources were our star performers in April with 9.9%, 6.6%, and 6.7% returns, respectively. Brokerage & Investment Mgmt, Air Transportation, and Environmental managed respectable gains of 0.8%, 1.3%, and 1.5%, respectively, while Networking & Infrastructure and Developing Communications both dropped over 2%.

May Exchanges

Because of their poor performance, Networking & Infrastructure and Developing Communications are dropping out of the Top Eight Model Portfolio after only one month. Energy and Industrial Materials are returning to the Top Eight Model Portfolio after a three-month hiatus.

Roth IRA Tax Advantages

A Roth IRA is a terrific way to save for retirement. Realized gains in a Roth IRA are not taxed. Distributions from a Roth IRA are not taxed, either, although you do have to be careful to avoid early withdrawal penalties. Seems like a dream come true, but there are a couple of small catches: the money you contribute must be after-tax money, and you can only contribute to a Roth IRA if your adjusted gross income is below certain levels: for the 2005 tax year, your AGI must have been less than $160,000 for married, filing jointly, or $110,000 for head of household or single taxpayers.

Here is a simple picture of how Roth IRAs work. You have income and pay income taxes on it. You contribute some of that income to your Roth IRA. Your Roth IRA grows and grows over the years until you retire. You take money from your Roth IRA to live on after retirement. You don't pay taxes on any of it.

Unlike a traditional IRA, you cannot deduct a contribution to your Roth IRA. You can take advantage, however, of the federal retirement savings contribution tax credit, which might even be better than deducting your contribution, if you qualify for it. For the 2005 tax year, the contribution tax credit phased out at AGI of $50,000 for married taxpayers, filing jointly, $37,500 for head of household tax payers, and $25,000 for single taxpayers.

You also can convert traditional IRAs to Roth IRAs if your AGI is below a certain level. For the 2005 tax year, your AGI, not counting conversion income, had to be $100,000 or less. In general, when you convert a traditional IRA to a Roth IRA, you have to pay taxes on the converted amount (conversion distribution) because you usually have not paid any taxes on the amounts in traditional IRAs. Once converted, however, the amounts in the new Roth IRA enjoy all the benefits listed above. Some states (North Carolina, for example) allow you to deduct some portion of the income from IRA distributions, including conversion distributions.

See IRS Publication 590 for more information about Roth IRAs, contributions, and conversions. See IRS Form 8880 and its instructions for more information about the retirement savings contribution credit.

Holding Period Alert

We bought Networking & Infrastructure and Developing Communications on April 3, and we will be selling both of them on May 2, which just meets Fidelity Investments' 30-day holding period to avoid their 0.75% short-term trading fee. If you enter your exchanges on Monday, May 1, after 4pm ET, both funds will still be shown as being short-term shares. When your trade is processed on Tuesday, May 2, it will be processed as trading long-term shares, and you will avoid the short-term trading fee. If you enter your exchanges on Tuesday, May 2, before 4pm, both funds will be shown as long-term shares, and your exchange will be processed as of May 2.

If you missed last month's exchange date and bought either Networking & Infrastructure or Developing Communications after April 3, count the day you bought it as day 1 and exchange it on the first business day on or after day 30. You should still enter the other exchange to be processed on May 2, if you have held it 30 days.

Subscribe to Fidelity Select Fundranker

You can subscribe to Fidelity Select Fundranker for $99/year. For this fee, you will receive 12 issues of the Fidelity Select Fundranker newsletter via email on or before the first day of each month. You will also receive an email a few days in advance of each issue to alert you to the upcoming issue and exchange date. Although there is a Fidelity Select Fundranker website, www.fundranker.com, with much historical information about the Fidelity Select Fundranker system, subscribing to the newsletter is the only way to get timely notice of the monthly exchanges.
